IWG RECEIVES NEW ORDER FOR BOEING BUSINESS JET CIRCULATING POTABLE WATER SYSTEM

April 30, 2007

Burnaby, BC, Canada - International Water-Guard Industries Inc. (IWG) is pleased to announce that it has received another order for its patented Circulating Potable Water System (C-PWS™) to be installed on a Boeing Business Jet (BBJ) aircraft. This premium system will be installed at a completions facility in the United States. The BBJ is a factory-new 'green' aircraft, and will receive a full interior as well as the C-PWS installation.

This will be the second BBJ to have the C-PWS installed. IWG holds both a TCCA and FAA Supplemental Type Certificate for the BBJ installation. The system will be delivered in 2007.

"The owner of this aircraft wants nothing but the best," said David Fox, IWG's President and CEO. "That includes the water system, and our C-PWS is the best available providing consistent water flow and eliminating the risk of in-flight freezing. Not only does it double the amount of water carried, but it maximizes the use of available space. We replace one original air-pressurized water tank with two unpressurized conformal tanks."

The C-PWS replaces air-pressurization within the water system with continual circulation of the water by special aviation water pumps. This not only minimizes weight, but provides protection from freezing without electrical water line heaters. The C-PWS also includes IWG's Water Treatment Units to eliminate the threat from harmful bacteria and viruses.

International Water-Guard is a Canadian aerospace company focusing on aircraft potable water treatment and full water system solutions. IWG has expertise in all aspects of water treatment, and has the products and know-how to provide high quality water for passengers and crew, and light weight, space saving solutions for the aircraft operator.
