DASSAULT FALCON JET TAKES DELIVERY OF FIRST IWG-A4 “INTELLIGENT” WATER TREATMENT UNIT

December 13, 2007

Burnaby, BC, Canada - International Water-Guard Industries Inc., the world leader in aircraft water treatment, is pleased to announce the first delivery of its new IWG-A4 'intelligent' water treatment unit to Dassault Falcon Jet in Teterboro, NJ.

“Dassault Falcon Jet has been installing our equipment for several years, and we are very pleased to be continuing this relationship with the provision of our newest and most advanced Water Treatment Unit”, said David Fox, president and CEO. The unit is now available through Dassault Falcon Jet for all new Falcons, and an STC is being prepared for retrofits on the F50, F900 and F2000 series aircraft.

“We see on-board water treatment as a feature to offer our customers, both in the new and retrofit markets”, said Frank Youngkin, vice-president, Dassault Falcon Jet Worldwide Spares. “IWG make extremely robust and reliable products, and we are pleased to have them as a partner on our aircraft”, he added.

Lighter in weight than its predecessor, the IWG-A4 is electronically and physically more robust. Ease of maintenance was a key design feature, addressed through a new modular design.

The IWG-A4 is also equipped with enhanced self-monitoring capability that ensures adequate ultraviolet light is produced to disinfect the aircraft's water supplies, while scanning for a range of fault conditions which can be reported to a cabin management system through standard industry data protocols.

International Water-Guard is a Canadian aerospace company focusing on aircraft potable water treatment and full water system solutions. With expertise in all aspects of water treatment, IWG has the products and knowledge to provide high quality water for passengers and crew, as well as lightweight, space saving solutions for the aircraft operator.
