IWG AND AIM AVIATION SIGN EUROPEAN DISTRIBUTORSHIP AGREEMENT

March 8, 2005

Burnaby, BC, Canada - International Water-Guard Industries Inc. (IWG) is pleased to announce that it has signed a European distributorship agreement with UK based aircraft interiors manufacturer AIM Aviation. The agreement confers exclusive rights to AIM Aviation to market IWG's aircraft water treatment units to airline customers in Europe.

"This is a very significant development that positions us for success in an important market," said IWG President and CEO David Fox. "AIM Aviation is not only well respected among European airlines, but as an aircraft interiors manufacturer, is an excellent partner to introduce our water treatment solutions. In combination with the growing global consensus on the issue of airline potable water quality, this agreement is a very positive development. AIM and IWG will be working together in developing packages to meet the needs of these customers."

Shaun McDonald, Business Development Director for AIM Aviation, agreed. "We are definitely seeing an increased level of interest in water treatment for aircraft," McDonald said. "The fact that the EPA in the United States is taking airlines there to task on water quality is not lost on airlines in Europe, so this is an ideal time for AIM to be offering a solution. IWG is offering the best water treatment equipment available, which fits well with our dedication to introduce innovative technology to the airlines."

AIM Aviation of the UK, with over forty years of experience in the aerospace industry, has a unique combination of capabilities in the design, development, manufacture and installation of aircraft interior equipment and is recognized internationally as a leader in this field. Aircraft containing AIM designed and manufactured interior products are operated today by both commercial airlines and military authorities throughout the world.

International Water-Guard Industries Inc. is a Canadian aerospace company focusing on aircraft potable water treatment and full water system solutions. IWG has expertise in all aspects of water treatment, and has the products and know-how to provide high quality water for passengers and crew, and light weight, space saving solutions for the aircraft operator.
